

FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY MOTORISTS STOPPED AT TWO BRIDGES ACROSS THE DELAWARE RIVER BY OPA MEN

Fifty Questioned at Burlington-Bristol Bridge and 15 Were Alleged Violators — Four Hundred Stopped at Trenton Bridge and 12 Were Alleged Violators — Some Ration Books Confiscated — Various Excuses Were Given to Officers.

Representatives of the Office of Price Administration halted approximately 450 drivers of motor vehicles at the Burlington-Bristol bridge and the Morrisville bridge yesterday, checking up on their reasons for operating their cars, in the drive against pleasure driving.

Of the 50 motorists halted at the bridge here it is stated by officials from the Philadelphia office of the OPA that 15 allegedly were violating the pleasure driving ban. Gasoline ration books were taken from three and sent with the charge to the motorist's local ration boards. If it is determined that no violation exists the books will be returned to the owners, it is said.

At Morrisville bridge 400 motorists were stopped and of these 12 were charged with violations, and three books taken by officials. One lot of loose stamps was also picked up by officials from a motorist.

Various excuses for driving were given the officers, these including: Trip to dressmaker, taking a woman to her home in Bordentown, N. J., following a contest at Morrisville; man driving from Yardley to industrial plant at Trenton, N. J., to take his wife home from work; two being taken from points in Bucks County to Trenton railroad station; trip being made from Morrisville to Trenton for ice; visiting friends; one individual who is said to make trips several times a day across bridge, charged with using "C" coupons from book issued for another car (one man in machine stated he was going bathing); taking children and friends to Trenton.

Mrs. Frederick Reynolds, Farragut Avenue, Dies

A Bristol woman died in Abington Hospital yesterday following a short illness.

She is Mrs. Esther W. Reynolds, wife of Fred W. Reynolds, of Farragut avenue. In addition to her husband she is survived by her daughters and sons. Mrs. Reynolds had resided here for a number of years.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

THE ILLICK FUNERAL

HULMEVILLE, June 28—Funeral service for Mrs. Helen K. Illick, 92, who died on Friday evening, will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from the late home of the deceased, Green street. Leech Held Under Bail For Next Court Term

Edgar Leech, who was arrested Saturday morning charged with selling numbers, was held in $300 bail for court, after a hearing before Justice of Peace Arthur P. Brady.

Leech was taken into custody by Chief Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo.

Bristol police some time ago warned that "number selling" in Bristol must stop and that those caught would be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Mrs. Antonio Saporito Dies; Funeral Wednesday

Mrs. Rose Saporito, wife of the late Antonio Saporito, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Peter Tamburello, Pond street, yesterday. Other survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Charles Spezzano, Bristol; and a son, Joseph Saporito, of Philadelphia.

The funeral, to which relatives and friends are invited, will be held from 511 Pond street, Wednesday at nine a. m. High Requiem Mass will be said in St. Ann's Church at 10 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mark's cemetery, with Galzerano funeral director, in charge.

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Instructions on how to fly an airplane were given the members of the Quakertown Rotary Club, on Tuesday evening, by Clifford Reese, a member of the Quakertown high school faculty, who has taken lessons preparatory to obtaining a pilot's license.

The technique of operating the controls was demonstrated by means of a model plane. He also answered a number of questions relating to aviation.

Daniel Anthony Cahill, 56, for about a year chief of Newtown Elre Company and a member of Newtown borough council, died Wednesday evening in the Post Graduate Hospital, Philadelphia, after having undergone an operation for tumor of the brain on Tuesday.

Mr. Cahill, the husband of Jennie (nee Daffert) Cahill, had been in declining health since January, and was taken to Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J., from which he was transferred less than a week ago to the hospital in which he died.

Born in Camden, N. J. a son of the late Daniel and Matilda (nee Ryan) Cahill, the deceased resided in Newtown about 35 years, during which he followed his trade as a blacksmith and iron worker.

Prior to becoming ill Mr. Cahill was chief of the air raid wardens in Newtown, but because of declining health was compelled to resign. Included among his survivors are the widow; a son, Robert J. Cahill, of Newtown; a sister, Mrs. Jennie Shell, Philadelphia; and a brother, Joseph Cahill, Camden, N. J.

STATE'S FRUIT CROP IS NOT UP TO PAR

Will Be Much Smaller Than Last Year, States J. U. Ruef

CITES THE REASONS

Predicting that Pennsylvania's fruit crop this year will be much smaller than last year's yield, J. U. Ruef, Pennsylvania State College fruit specialist and secretary of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Association, told county fruit growers this week that at the present time the State's apple crop looks to be about 55% of last year's crop. He addressed a meeting of the Bucks County Fruit Growers Association at the Water Wheel Inn, Doylestown. It was attended by about 25 growers.

Breaking down the expected apple crop into varieties, Ruef said that while there appears to be a heavy crop of Wealthy and Rambos, Delicious and Stamen are light. Romey only fair, and the McIntosh variety is very spotty.

He went on to say that the peach crop in Southeastern Pennsylvania will be as large as last year's, but north of the mountains in the State the peaches were winter killed.

There will be about 1-3 of last year's crop of sour cherries and only about 15 per cent of the sweet cherry crop, Mr. Ruef pointed out. The reasons for the light crop are two, he said: first, winter killing; and second, the cold, wet weather during the blooming period, which hampered the activities of the bees in their work of pollination.

"In Bucks County the apple crop probably needs no thinning; peaches, however, should be thinned," Mr. Ruef told the growers. He urged them to now their apple orchards in order to conserve the moisture for the trees to develop the crop that is set at the present time. He also recommended "spot picking" as a method of conserving moisture.

Considerable time was spent discussing varieties of apples and peaches, especially those which can be planted at the present time.

The next meeting of the Bucks County Fruit Growers' Association will be held during the last week in July at the Crowell orchards in Buckingham.

60 Knights of Columbus Have Communion Breakfast

The Knights of Columbus held their annual communion breakfast yesterday morning. About 60 members attended eight o'clock mass, in a body and received Holy Communion.

After the service, they had breakfast at the K. of C. Home, served by members of the Catholic Daughters. The menu was fruit cup, bacon and eggs, fried potatoes, rolls and coffee.

John Gavegan served as toastmaster and introduced Grand Knight John Klug, the Rev. Joseph Murphy and the Rev. Albert Glass, who gave short talks.

The guest speaker was Louis Sullivan. At 11:45 a. m. the members marched back to St. Mark's Church where they joined in the procession of the Feast of Corpus Christi.

Bowker Held For Theft at Walker Home

David Bowker, Pond street, was held without bail for court today, charged with entering the home of Albert Walker, 716 Fifth avenue, Bristol, on June 17th, and stealing $120 in cash and a $25 war bond.

Bowker was arrested Saturday night by the Bristol police and after being questioned by the police is said to have signed a statement admitting that he was guilty.

In his statement Bowker told police that he and his wife were returning from swimming in Silver Lake and that he told his wife that he was going to enter the Walker home and get some money. Bowker at one time lived with the Walkers and knew where they kept the money.

Bowker said his wife protested but that he went ahead. He had a key which opened the Walker door. He went to the second floor and got a miniature cedar chest with the valuable.

The witnesses this morning were Chief of Police Linford J. Jones, and Mrs. Walker.

Bowker admitted that the statement he gave police was true.

FIGHT AGAINST BUGS IS TOTAL GARDEN WAR

Destructive Cutworm, Tomato and Corn Worms Take Toll

ARE EASY TO COMBAT

By Jane Cochran

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

In fighting your battle against bugs, you're waging a total war in your Victory Garden. It's a toss up like it so often is, in total war, whether you should first attack the worms or the beetles, or concentrate first on knocking the bugs out of the war.

The problem of logistics is more in your favor in the Victory Garden. You're waging your war in a relatively small space, and you don't have to divide your forces. It's the best plan to know what enemies to expect and start waging war on them before they appear.

The worms which will bother you most are the destructive cutworm, the tomato worm, hague and green, the corn ear worm and the cabbage worm.

With the exception of the cutworm, they're fairly easy to combat as you can easily see them. The cutworm hides in the ground by day, emerging at night to do its lethal work. It cuts off young plants even with the surface of the ground, and it will now down flowers and vegetables with equal relish.

Cutworms are especially bad in newly spaded soil. They're difficult to kill by usual methods, and killing them individually is one of the best ways. Once they've cut down a plant, start digging in the dirt around the severed plant until you find the worm and kill it.

However, you can protect your plants from them with paper collars. They're made of heavy paper or cardboard and surround the stems of the plants. They should extend one inch below the surface of the earth and two inches above it, and should be put in when the plants are set out.

Couple Wed Here Will Travel To West Coast

The marriage of Miss Mary Pica, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vittorio Pica, 313 Brook street, to Staff Sgt. Joseph DiAnna, son of Mrs. Angelina DiTanna, Burlington, N. J., took place yesterday afternoon at three o'clock. The Rev. Fr. Peter Pinci performed the ceremony, with Mr. Pica escorting his daughter to the altar of St. Ann's Church.

Staff Sgt. DiAnna is located at Fort Lewis, near Seattle, Wash., and he and his bride will leave on Wednesday for the west coast.

Attending the bride as bridesmaid was Mrs. Louis DiTanna, New Brook street; and a matron of honor was also in attendance. Best man for the occasion was Mr. Louis DiTanna.

The bride's gown was of white marquisette over satin, a lace yoke topping a long torso effect. Lace inserts enhanced the long sleeves, and a wide ruffle of lace made a draped effect about the skirt, extended to the hem, and edged the long, wide train. Her tiara of beads and rhinestones held a four-tier finger-tip veil of net. Slippers were of white gabardine, and the bridal bouquet was of mixed white flowers.

The bridesmaid and matron of honor were attired in yellow net, the gowns being floor-length. Each had a wide ruffle of self-material which encircled the center of the skirt. The gowns had short sleeves, and V-necks. Their crownless hats of yellow net featured cross-straps across the heads, and long streamers which extended down their backs. Slippers were of blue, and their mixed bouquets were of blue and yellow flowers.

A reception took place last evening in Sons of Italy hall.

The travelling costume of the bride consists of a two-piece dress of black silk crepe with trim of white lace; black and white straw hat, and white accessories.

YOUNG MAN IS HURT IN A MOTOR CRASH

Armand Cicanti, 23, Phila., Has Mild Concussion of Brain

2 ARRESTS, 2 CASES

Two accidents occurred on Bristol Pike during the week-end, both of them taking place a short distance east of Philadelphia city line. In one crash a young man suffered a mild concussion of the brain. No injuries were reported for others involved.

The injured: Armand Cicanti, 23, of Torresdale avenue, Philadelphia, mild concussion of the brain, and laceration of the right forearm. He was taken to Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia, for treatment.

Cicanti was arrested on a charge of reckless driving, he having struck the rear of a Neibauer bus, operated by Warren W. Prindle, Crofton. The investigating officer was Private Leiberg of South Langhorne barracks, Pennsylvania State Police.

The accident occurred at 2:50 p. m. Saturday, 1½ miles east of the Philadelphia city line.

The other accident, occurring at two a. m. Sunday, took place two miles east of the city line. Peter H. ounce of Paris green or calcium

U. S. Bombers Blast 'Jap' Overland Supply Arteries

United Nations Headquarters in Australia—Low-flying American bombers yesterday blasted new gaps in the enemy's vital overland supply arteries in a series of sharp raids on "Jap" positions in New Guinea. Gen. MacArthur's headquarters revealed today.

Continuing the series of concentrated thrusts which began Saturday, the B-25s hammered at the Markham and Ramu headquarters, destroying buildings and setting off huge explosions in the heaviest pounding of the day while other formations pressed devastating bombing and strafing attacks at Salamaua.

U.S. Battleships Join Battle Fleet in Mediterranean

London—U. S. battleships have joined the battle fleet in the Mediterranean, further strengthening Italian belief that invasion immediately is pending. The Nazi-controlled Scandinavian News Bureau reported today. Reuters said a Vichy radio broadcast reported that German invasion barges had arrived in the Aegean Sea either for reinforcement or stranding attacks at Salamaua.

Arrest Ernest Lehmitz on Spy Charge

Washington—The FBI today announced the arrest of Ernest Frederick Lehmitz, an American citizen, charged with trying to send espionage information about troops and convoy movements to the German intelligence in Europe.

Lehmitz was specifically accused of violation of the Federal espionage statutes, which is punishable by a jail sentence of 30 years, or death. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, said Lehmitz was seized in New York City in what may be one of the most sensational spy cases of the war.

Hoover declared that Lehmitz had "written numerous letters to the German intelligence in Europe containing detailed information in secret writing as to shipping conditions in the New York harbor, as well as troop and convoy movements."

Lehmitz, a one-time employee of the German consulate in New York, began his alleged spy activities in January 1942, shortly after Germany declared war on the United States, the FBI said.

TO BREAK GROUND FOR 1200 HOUSES AT JOHNSVILLE

Ceremony To Take Place
Thursday Morning Before Group of Officials

TOUR OF THE PLANT

Project To Be of Brick and Masonry for Permanent Construction

JOHNSVILLE, June 28—Ground will be broken for a city of 1200 homes at Johns ville at 11:30 a. m. on July 1st.

Government officials from Washington and the regional offices of the United States Navy, War Manpower Commission, National Housing Agency, Federal Public Housing Administration, Federal Housing Administration, War Production Board and Federal Works Administration will participate.

There will be a conducted tour through Brewster's Johnsville plant starting at 9:45 a. m. Ground breaking ceremonies at Jacksonville and County Line Roads, Johnsville, will begin at 11:30 a. m.

Within the next ninety days a town of 1200 will be erected as a governmental war housing project for workers at Brewster Aeronautical Corporation's Johnsville division.

Climaxing a brilliant display of cooperation and red tape-cutting activity by several government agencies, acting in the interest of United States Navy production needs, ground will be broken for the project at Jacksonville and County Line Roads, Warmunster Township.

Frederick Riebel, Jr., Brewster president who originated the housing project when he took over management of the company a little more than three months ago, will officiate at the ceremonies while the actual ground breaking will be done by Charles S. Ascher, regional representative of the National Housing Agency, and John Taylor Egan, regional director of the Federal Public Housing Authority, both of whom maintain their offices in New York City.

The new Brewster war housing project will be a permanent construction of brick and masonry. It is officially known as PA-36434 and PA-36435 and the number of homes will be total the size of Haboro. This project will be the most speedily ever completed, counting the elapsed time from the inception of the idea to the moment when the permanent homes will be turned over to Brewster workers for occupancy.

The project will be complete in every detail. Units will be for from two to six families and will be of one and two story construction. They will be modern in every way and will be heated by coal.

There will be a special water pumping station erected to supply the project. The large sewage disposal plant which serves Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, and which is now more than twice as big as that which serves the entire communities of Haboro and Willow Grove, will be doubled once more to accommodate the Warminster Township project. There will be a new school erected in Warminster Township to accommodate 600 pupils. Community stores and complete recreational facilities also are included in the project planning. A feature of the project will be two day nurseries where war workers may leave small children during the hours of employment at Brewster.

Lieutenant John Kendall, USNR, of the office of the Senior Naval Advisor, Philadelphia, was responsible for co-ordinating the various government agencies who made possible the program. That he was able to discharge his duties with such rapidity and satisfaction was due to the unusual co-operation received from the War Manpower Commission, National Housing Agency, Federal Public Housing Administration, War Production Board and other government agencies.

THE MAP GAZER

Most photographs of Hitler and his aides, released by the Nazi press agency through neutral sources, show them studying maps. The Nazi propagandists probably do not realize it but their releases reveal a far more realistic picture of the tottering Hitler than he or they would wish.

Hitler, indeed, is studying maps these days and the frowning wrinkles on his face are not there for effect. The war of nerves has come home to roost. Studying maps of Europe hour after hour the totalitarian longs to have a vision. He hopes to see on the many maps over which he bends the picture of the next move by the United Nations. Faint flickers of what is to be no doubt come to him.

While gazing intently at the map of Russia Hitler probably can see a red mass moving down the Kuban River, across the Kerch Strait into the Crimea, while somewhere between Rostov and Kharkov another red arrow begins to curve downward to meet the red line moving into the Crimea.

Then, with a hasty glance at Western Europe, Hitler gets a glimpse of Stars and Stripes and a Union Jack, showing up in Sicily, Italy, the French coast both north and south, in Greece, with an arrow pointed around the west shore of the Black Sea toward those red dashes on the Russian map.

If Hitler's glance takes in northern Europe, there is Norway to wrinkle his brow and the Low Countries to bring squints to his eyes. It cannot be a happy map gazer, this Hitler the Nazi propagandists show so frequently.

BUSINESS PROSPECTS

Business patterns for the next six months have been charted by Brig. Gen. Leonard P. Ayres of the Cleveland Trust Company. General Ayres has long been one of America's outstanding economists and his forecasts are among the most respected in the nation.

He sees increased production in war lines "because our needs for initial equipment are still far from satisfied," and he predicts that month by month the United States will undergo progressive shortages of manpower and womanpower. He charts still greater traffic loads and declares that if the present trend continues, there will soon come a saturation of traffic facilities and the necessity of instituting new "systems of transportation rationing or priorities."

General Ayres looks for a short crop because of the unfavorable weather. He believes that both wholesale and retail prices will continue to advance. If these predictions are accurate—and General Ayres is usually extremely accurate in his forecasts—the middle man is in for an even more trying period than he is now going through.

It is the white collar worker who is suffering most at the present time. His wages are frozen, yet his living costs and taxes are rising.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol October 6, 1881. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The following officers of Hopkins Lodge, I. O. O. F., were installed last night: John G. Tabram, N. G.; Frank T. Chambers, V. G.; Clarence N. Pearce, financial secretary; and John W. Bailey, treasurer.

Last Friday afternoon, the closing up of Prof. Krichbaum's connection with the schools, he was very much surprised by the presentation by the pupils of the grammar school of one of Roger's statues, representing Columbus in chains after his discovery of America. The presentation speech was made by Miss Anna Brady. Mr. Krichbaum was very much affected by this exhibition of the esteem in which he was held by his pupils.

William P. Wright has purchased the dwelling and store room belonging to Joseph Kinsey's estate, paying therefor the sum of $5,000. He has also bought the stock of hardware, and will embark in that business.

George S. Stone & Son, plumbers, have rented the Gibson property on Mill street, opposite Hoguet's drug store, where they will establish a branch of their business which will be an addition to their up-town office.

Nineteen thirty-seconds of the schooner "William Tice" has been sold by Bristol owners to parties in New York. She will be put in the Virginia pine wood trade.

tween the coast of Florida and New York.

Thomas Stradling, of Morrisville, died very suddenly in that borough on Wednesday of last week. He was engaged repairing a pump for James Fawley, and complaining of being tired, he sat down on the side of the well, put his hands up to his face, drew a long breath, fell over on one side, and instantly expired. On the same day, Ann M. Carr, a resident of Bridgewater, who had apparently been in good health, while taking a walk out in her yard, suddenly stopped, sank to the ground, and in a few minutes was dead. Deputy coroner Young was notified in both cases, juries were summoned and inquests held. The jury in each case rendered a verdict of death from heart disease.

SUGGESTIONS GIVEN FOR CANNING; KEEP WITHIN SUGAR RATION

By Mrs. Katharine G. Moon (Home Economics Representative)

The starting point for a home-maker's planning is to get this year's sugar facts well in mind. A home canner may get up to 10 pounds of sugar for each person in her family by using stamps in War Ration Book I designated for that purpose. If she needs more sugar than that she may apply to her local War Price and Ration Board and get coupons which will allow her to buy up to 15 pounds per person in addition to the original allotment. The guiding rule for using the sugar is the same as last year: Allow 1 pound of sugar for each 4 quarts of finished fruit. If desired, 5 pounds of sugar per person may be requested for making preserves or jellies or fruit butters but this must be included within the 25 pounds of "canning sugar" allowed to one person.

It usually takes $\frac{3}{4}$ to 1 cup of liquid to each quart jar of fruit, to fill it around the solid food and to cover it well.

The home canning sugar ration allows about $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of sugar to use in each quart jar, as an average.

Here are pointers from the home economists for canning the berries, cherries, and other summer fruits as they come along, so that the fruits, the sugar ration, and the home canner herself may all keep in step.

1. Shift the sugar to fit the fruit. Sour fruits may demand, and get, more than the average. In that case, you will count on giving short rations of sugar to some of your very juicy and sweet fruits.

2. Put up some fruit without sugar if necessary. It's true that a little sugar helps canned fruits to hold color and flavor. But the sugar isn't essential to keep the canned fruit from spoiling.

3. Precook fruit for canning. You can heat the fruit in fruit juice, or sirup, or water. Adding sugar before heating the fruit will help draw out juice. Some fruit thus treated yield enough juice of their own so that no additional liquid is needed.

There is good reason for heating the fruit before it goes into the canner. Precooking shrinks the fruit, helping you to get more into each jar, which is good wartime economy of glass jars and metal caps, and economy of shelf space, besides. However, never cram the food down tight of course. Allow a good proportion of liquid to each jar.

4. Thin or moderately thin sirup is in step with the sugar ration. For thin sirup, use 1 cup of sugar to 3 cups of water for juice. For moderately thin sirup, use 1 cup of sugar to 2 cups of water or juice. If sour cherries or other really sour fruits require a medium-thick sirup, use 1 cup of sugar to 1 cup of water or juice.

5. To extract juice: Crush and heat some of your softer juicy fruits to boiling. Use very low heat or set the pan over hot water, so the fruit won't stick to the pan. Be sure the fruit used for juice is as cut out any trace of bruise or decay, for the canning saying holds good: "A bit of decay may spoil a batch." When the juice flows freely, strain it. Sweeten to taste, if desired.

6. In place of sugar, use if you wish some of a mild-flavored sirup like honey or corn sirup. Use honey to replace up to half of your sugar, or corn sirup to replace up to one-third of your sugar. A larger proportion of the sirup would mask the delicate fruit flavor.

7. Three don'ts to end with: Don't use in your canning any sirups that have high flavor of their own, such as maple, sorghum, or molasses. Don't use brown sugar. Don't use saccharine in canning. If you do wish to use saccharine to sweeten canned fruit, add it just before serving, or the fruit may take on a bitter taste.

HULMEVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Dolan have gone to Jacksonville, Fla., where they plan to reside for a few months.

Joseph O. Canby, Jr., has completed his course at Friends School, Barnessville, O., and following graduation exercises returned to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Canby, "Greenwood Farm." Miss Cicely Canby, a student at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., is also passing the summer with her parents here.

The church board of education and workers' council will conduct a meeting at eight o'clock tonight in Neshaminy Methodist Church.

John Becker, a member of the U. S. Navy, who is stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Ill., spent the week-end visiting friends in this section.

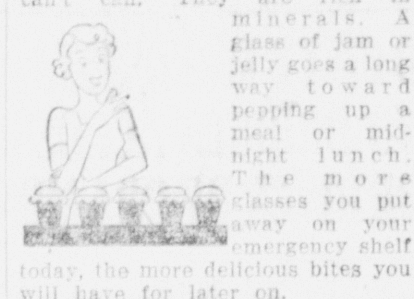

Dolores Whitehead, of Haddonfield, N. J., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Cox.

Can 'Em While You Can

By Frances Lee Barton

CAN as many fruits and berries as you can, and eat what you can eat. They are rich in minerals. A glass of jam or jelly goes a long way toward pepping up a meal or mid-night lunch.

The more classes you put away on your emergency shelf today, the more delicious bites you will have for later on.

Sour Cherry Jam

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit; 5 cups sugar; 2 cups light corn sirup; 1 bottle fruit pectin. To prepare fruit, stem and pit about 2 1/2 pounds fully ripe cherries. Chop thoroughly or grind. Add 3/4 cup water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 15 minutes. (For stronger cherry flavor, add 1/4 teaspoon almond extract before pouring.)

Measure sugar, corn sirup and prepared fruit, solidly packed, into large kettle, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly and while boiling. Boil hard 2 minutes. Remove from fire and stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

ties and all sections. So far as known, the opposition was represented by Mr. Murray, of the CIO; Mr. Green, of the AFL; and Mr. Alex. Rose, of the communistic American Labor party. If there were others, their opposition was not open and these three proved

IT SEEMS somewhat ridiculous. It seems also impossible that Mr. Roosevelt does not know there is slight chance of passing this proposal now. For one thing, there is time. Congress intends to recess for the summer right after July 1, and the resolution has already been drawn. For another, it is a reversal of his own position. For another, the opposition in Congress is strong. Senator Byrd is for it, of course, but no other voice has been recently raised. Few think there is a chance of favorable action now. Most believe Mr. Roosevelt knows that. Clearly, then, had his veto been sustained, we would now be without any legislation at all with which to deal with the strike threat—and with no prospect of any. At least, Congress, sensationally rebuffing the President, has given us a law. It isn't a first-class law, but it is a law and had the President been sustained, the labor lobbyists would still be on top and we would have nothing. The defects in the law can be cured by amendment later, but at least it is something. The truth is that it is difficult to explain the President's attitude except on the ground that he is a candidate dependent on labor support.

stronger than all the rest. In standing by them, even though vainly, the President must have pained many who heretofore have supported him. In particular, there is reason to believe he has lost caste among the men in uniform everywhere.

THESE HAD been deeply outraged by the Lewis holdup. For months they have been rightly resentful at those who impede the war effort at home by strikes for more money while soldiers and sailors are losing their lives on the battle fronts abroad. In this case, they had been counting upon the President to accept any available anti-strike weapon and his refusal for a thin reason, to sign this law, must seem to them a letdown. Better proof of this feeling could be given than the wild applause which was led by the soldiers, sailors and marines in the House and Senate galleries when the veto was overridden. The controversy between the War Labor Board and Mr. Ickes, the weakness of Mr. Roosevelt's own statements, his curious failure to mention Mr. Lewis by name, his long delay in doing anything about this bill until the last possible moment, then his veto and the inadequacy of his explanation—all these things helped create a really discreditable situation.

NOR IS it improved by reiterated insistence upon his proposal made Thursday to extend the draft to 65 years so that strikers might be put into military service. There are several things to be said about that. First, it was generally believed that this proposal was made to afford an excuse for the anti-strike bill veto and the veto had been expected from the moment he presented it. Second, the proposal originally was made last March in a bill introduced by Senator Byrd. To this bill Mr. Roosevelt and the labor lobbyists were violently opposed. The weight of the Administration was exerted against it. Under White House pressure, Mr. McNutt, Mr. Donald Nelson, Secretary Knox and others went to Congress and hammered the bill. It did not come out of committee. Now Mr. Roosevelt is asking Congress to pass the very proposal which he himself opposed three months ago.

looked around to see Brenda smiling up at Christopher. "Too bad about Gretel. I was so hoping that she'd come up against Konstantine in Specials. It would have been dramatic—But maybe Miss Rivers' dog will take your place." She turned her smile on Ann. "You see Miss Rivers, aren't you? I met your sister up at your farm. Such a charming person. And I saw your puppy at the Sweepstakes—Well, here's hoping that she has better luck today."

Ann was aware of the guilty flush on Christopher's face and forgot her own troubles in his unhappy embarrassment. It was wicked to let him go on paying for his mistaken chivalry.

"Oh, we lose today and win tomorrow," she tossed out lightly, and broke off as Doctor Barrie walked in Rowdy's direction. Rowdy sank down on her rear, as if she were losing not only her stocking but all her petticoats as well. The crowd tittered, indeed, they had never stormed differently.

"Oh, he's going to do it," Ann winced. "He's going to send her out of the ring." She closed her eyes, only to open them again with horror's morbid fascination. But no, Doctor Barrie was not throwing Rowdy out of the ring. He was standing beside her, gently stroking her head, and, under his touch, Rowdy was growing quieter. "Oh, bless him for that! If only he'd pat Paul, too, to quiet him. Why do people let themselves in for this kind of thing. It's perverse torture."

Doctor Barrie gestured Rowdy back into the parading line and the torture commenced again. As the line circled toward him, she opened her lips to call to the dog.

"No, don't!" Christopher's grip was like iron. "It's against the rules."

"Oh, I'm so sorry." Her voice must have carried, for Rowdy stopped, ears askew, and scanned the spectators in an effort to find her mistress. The ringside began to laugh again.

"That's the five thousand dollar claim dog!"

"That's the one!"

"Highest priced monkey meat in the world!"

And then, all of a sudden, Rowdy caught sight of Ann, and confusion and bewilderment seemed to vanish. The dog's outer form underwent no change, but it was as if some vivid current of life were infused within it. It was as if a new animal were being created before the very eyes of those who, but an instant before, had only ridicule for the spectacle of a befuddled puppy. The laughter faded into silence.

Rowdy stood there, vulnerable and poignant, like a young actress recovering from stage fright. Ann gave up a little prayer, "Please Lord, don't let anybody make a loud noise, or she'll collapse again—"

Christopher leaned toward her. "You say anything?"

"No, I was only praying."

He pressed her arm. "Join you."

"Thanks."

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

Christopher Wain stormed toward the far end of the Dane benches. His cut not to fellow exhibitors cut short all casual civilities. Only Otto Pfeiffer, who had once worked for him but who now free-lanced as buying agent for imported stock, stepped forward and put his hand on Christopher's arm. "Ach, Mr. Wain, this is the first time I saw you since the Baron died! A great loss—" The old man's voice choked up with emotion. "I groomed him for his first show in this country, you remember?"

"I remember," Christopher responded.

"And now with the Baron gone, you turn dog business upside down, yah?"

Christopher halted. What was the fellow talking about? He had turned nothing upside down. It was those young idiots, Paul and Ann, who had been turning things upside down.

"Sure, all of us had the wins pretty well figured," Otto pursued. "We conceded you the open class, and we conceded you the Harlequins, and you have some real puppies up your sleeve, too. And then what do you do?"

"Well, what do I do?" Christopher demanded.

"You bring only one dog," Otto smiled and wagged his finger. "If I didn't know you was smart, I would think you were dumb. Because what is also? Your last import? One of your own strain? No, it is Freund's breeding."

"Well, Gretel's a swell dog," Christopher asserted warmly.

"Yah! Yah! But is she that good?" Otto persisted.

"They don't come any better than Freund is breeding right now," Christopher told him. "And he needs a hand; he needs the rest of us to give him some support."

A light came over Otto's face. "By golly, you're the sportsman!"

"That's not it!" Christopher denied furiously. "I tell you I believe in the Rheingold bloodline."

He managed to shake off the garrulous Otto, and hurried on to Hans, who was waiting for him at Gretel's bench.

"We haven't as much time to get her in shape," Hans greeted him nervously, looking at his watch.

"Say, Mr. Wain, look down at that end bench on the other side."

Christopher glanced toward the bench at the far corner. "Konstantine. Good dog," he acknowledged.

"Good dog, sure," Hans echoed. Christopher's words but emboldened them with. "The king is dead. The Baron is gone, and now the little fellows can come out from hiding."

"Well, why not? The place belongs to him; he's been forty times Best of Breed."

"Certainly, certainly," Hans agreed, with heavy irony. "Konstantine never beat the Baron, did he? They never showed him with the Baron after the first three times, did they? And the puppies he gets? Ach! They have to tell you they're Great Danes!"

"All right, I agree with you. He's no stud, but he's a good-looking dog."

"Yah, but there's more to it," Hans placed his finger alongside his nose for emphasis. "I been talking to his handler and the man says the dog has been sold. Und guess who?"

"Hans' face suddenly turned red and he looked embarrassed. "No, don't guess. I talk too much." He slipped Gretel's chain and started to lead her from the bench.

"Sure I can guess," Christopher threw after him. "A beginner—somebody who doesn't know anything more about Danes than their outsides."

"Yah, a beginner. I groom Gretel now—I meet you by the exercise ring." Hans waddled down the aisle.

"Oh, Chris! The voice cut above the ear-ringing cacophony of barking dogs. "Chris, wait!" Brenda rushed over to him. "I've been looking high and low for you. Isn't it fun, isn't it exciting?"

"You never used to think so. What brings you to a dog show of all places?" He concealed his impatience with difficulty. Brenda was up to no good.

"But Chris, I never knew," she expostulated. She expected him to follow up with, "Never knew what?" but he maintained a perverse silence. Nothing daunted, she bubbled on. "Dog shows aren't any fun, really, unless you show dogs. Look, Chris." Her voice dropped an octave and she called forth that throaty effect that always made all the men within earshot turn about and look. "I wanted to tell you before anybody else told you. I'm showing a dog today."

"That so? Good luck to you. What breed?"

"What breed, idiot?" She gave the impression of gleefully clapping her hands. "Why, a Dane of course. I'm your competitor." She had maneuvered him toward Konstantine's bench, and pointed dramatically. "What do you think of him?"

So that was the darky in Hans' woodpile! Brenda was the beginner who had bought Konstantine.

"He's a good-looking dog and stands to win today," Christopher said generously.

"He'd better, or I'll have been robbed," Brenda pouted. "And you'll be responsible, because you were the one who taught me to go into the big brackets for a top dog. I paid twenty-eight hundred for him."

Christopher thought silently. You paid plenty. Aloud he said, "Keep him in the show ring, and you'll get your fun out of it." And that's all she would get out of it, for it took more than payment and transfer of ownership to supply the real satisfaction of picking a dog before he's proven, and sticking to him. "Good luck to you," he said briefly.

"Here's hoping! I'll see you when the Best of Winners comes up to meet Konstantine."

"Oh, I don't expect we'll be meeting in the ring," Christopher smiled good-naturedly. "I'll be thankful if we take our class today."

"Oh, the poor Baron's death—" Brenda made a business of looking sad. "It'll be a shame not to have a Wain dog out in front at the final judging. Except that there will be a Wain dog," she added softly. "I mean, it's all in the family."

Christopher wanted to tell her that he'd have none of Konstantine's monkey meat under his kennel, but he refrained.

"Oh, and before I forget," Brenda gave out as a parting shot, "your Miss Rivers certainly has adopted the Wain touch with the claim price she's set on her dog."

"She's not my Miss Rivers," he retorted angrily.

Brenda gave her tinkling laugh. "Well, things are serious with you. You needn't bite my head off. She's somebody's Miss Rivers, and I just made her yours in a manner of speaking."

The chubbiness of the little man was ready to smooth Christopher down. "Yes, yes, it's ridiculous," he proppitiated hastily. "First time the dog's been shown. Slipped by while we weren't looking. He waded to a group of reporters and camera men in a corner, and made a series of little fat clucks with his tongue."

"I agree with you," Christopher said loud enough for the newspapermen to hear. "I'm claiming the dog at that price. That's the way I like to pick them."

There was a gasp from the tattersall waistcoat. There was a gasp from the reporters. "This is getting to be a real story, one of them announced."

"You call this a story?" Christopher scoffed. "This is just the beginning."

He could have kicked himself as he left the steward's office. Paul and Ann had prepared a beautiful spot for themselves, and he had walked in and usurped it. Well, if jackasses were in the making today, he was going to be one of them. But at least he was going to get a dog and a wife out of it!

The moment this show was over he was going to go ahead with the figurative wringing of Ann's neck and then he was going to bundle her and her highly publicized poach into his car, and head for some other state. He tried to remember which of the neighboring states would serve his purpose. New York and Connecticut were out—they apparently didn't believe in hasty marriages. Maryland was in the wrong direction. He'd have to look into the question of Rhode Island.

Grange Members Hear of Food Problem in England

LANGHORNE, June 28.—Worthy Lecturer Alice Kirk introduced the speaker of the evening at the meeting of Middletown Grange, held on Wednesday evening in the Memorial House. The speaker was William Eves, of George School.

Mr. Eves, who represented the American Friends Service Committee in England last winter, told of the food conditions in England.

Worthy Master Herman Heston presided at the business meeting.

Picture slides were shown of America.

The next meeting will be a children's meeting in charge of Miss Florence Tomlinson, and will be held in the Community House on July 7.

GRAND THEATRE

The latest widely heralded novel to be made into a motion picture is Mary O'Hara's "My Friend Flicka," the new Technicolor film which is slated to open today at the Grand Theatre.

Mary O'Hara's beloved story had one of the most unusual careers in the history of publishing. Topping the list of best sellers for many months, it also had the signal distinction of being selected for reproduction in four of the nation's top-circulation magazines: Reader's Digest, Story Magazine, Red Book and Scholastic Magazine. Pastor

We thank thee, O Father, for our Nation, for her history, for her great men, for the fact that our nation was founded on religious principles, and that she has been led by men with deep spiritual convictions. Make us worthy of our heritage, and cause us to do all that is within our power to retain the freedom of our nation, and to develop within the citizens a sense of dependence upon thee which will bring them all to their knees before thy throne of grace. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

An example of Henry Fonda's growth in character occurs in his newest film, picturization of John Brophy's "Immortal Sergeant." In the film coming today to the Ritz Theatre, the star appears as a mildly successful author thrown by the war into the full fury of the fighting in the Libyan desert from the quiet cloisters of his profession.

arsenate, with one pound of bran or corn flakes and a half cup of molasses, will be fairly effective, too. Mix it to form a paste, roll it into small balls and place them on the surface to attract the worms. This poison bait is also effective in controlling grasshoppers, which will strip the leaves off your plants.

Tomato worms are huge green caterpillars, with pronounced yellow markings. They're extremely repulsive looking and are from three to four inches long. They'll feast on any tomato leaves they're easily picked off and killed. Rotenone or an arsenic spray or dust will kill them, if you can't bear to do the task in person.

ENGAGED TO WED

bers of the cabbage family. They're killed with a dust of rotenone or calcium arsenate and the dusting should be started before the worms appear.

Cabbages also fall prey to the cabbage maggot. This is a legless white maggot that gnaws brownish grooves over the surface and makes slimy burrows through the roots. The base of the plants should be treated as well as the adjoining soil. Use a dust made of one part calomel and 25 parts of hydrated lime. It should be applied at the rate of one to two ounces per row. Give your radishes the same treatment once, soon after they come up.

The corn ear worm is difficult to control and it's quite prevalent in the corn rows of most gardens. It's a caterpillar, about two inches long, striped and marked with green and brown. It's hatched from eggs laid on the young silk. The larva eats the tip of the ear and decay follows.

One of the methods of control is to inject $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoonful of medical mineral oil in the silk channel of each ear after pollination. Don't do this too soon after, however, or the ear will not fill out. Partial control may also be achieved by covering the tips of the ears with paper bags after the silks have turned brown.

ORIOLA PITCHES SECOND NO-HIT GAME OF SEASON

Franklin A. C. Swamps The Fourth Ward Nine In Youth League

FINAL SCORE IS 15 TO 1

Only Tally Marked Against Oriola Was One Resulting From Pass

"Toby" Oriola pitched his second two-hit game of the season on the high school field yesterday afternoon as the Franklin A. C. swamped the Fourth Ward nine, 15-1, in a Bristol Youth League game.

The Franklin hurler should have had another shutout to his credit as the only tally marked against him was the result of a pass to Moore and a two-base error by Keyes.

The winners scored 15 runs on eight hits, taking advantage of many Fourth Ward errors. Mayo Scancelli ran wild on the bases, scoring three runs at will.

BRISTOL A. A. WINS OVER FISHER NINE

Bristol A. A. club won the second straight game at Philadelphia yesterday when they downed the strong Fisher's A. A. Club in a red hot game played before a big crowd to the tune of 5 to 4. Lonnie Heisler was on the hill for Mulholland's warriors and gave the Phila. League stars only 4 hits, striking out eight batters. Hen Barnshaw started for the Fisher Club and was relieved by "Reds" Sasse in the 6th inning.

The features of the game were the batting of Ritter, Palumbo and Eggle Brown, and fielding of Ritter, Palumbo, McDevitt and Hunter and J. Barnshaw for Fisher's. The A. A. club took the field minus their key players, Van Zant, Bauroth, Miksis and Breslin. But Manager Mulholland invaded the local high school ranks and gave Joe McDevitt and Len Simons a tryout. Both of the boys played good ball.

To Break Ground For
1200 Houses at Johnsville

Speed was essential in the development of this project because Brewster is now in the process of moving its executive offices, engineering and other productive departments from Long Island City, N. Y., to Johnsville. The plants at Long Island City will be retained but will be used only for the manufacturing of component parts, sub assemblies and tools, dies and jigs.

Brewster, which for the past three months has been exceeding all of its schedules in the production of dive bombers for the Navy and Great Britain, has embarked upon an elaborate program for the manufacture of Corsair P3A fighters for the Navy and our Allies.

These fighters are now being assembled at Long Island City and test flown at Johnsville. According to Walter K. Dow, operational vice president, within the next two months responsibility for the entire operation will rest with the Johnsville plant which is under the management of P. M. Stephenson.

President Ribbel has arranged with Dow and Stephenson for a special tour of the Johnsville plant previous to the ground breaking ceremonies on Thursday. The tour will begin at 9:45 a. m.

This marks the third housing project instituted by the government for workers of Brewster Aeronautical Corporation. It is located within walking distance of the plant and three-quarters of a mile from Fulmor Heights, east of

"VINCE" STRATTON CONTINUES LEAD OF LOCAL BATTERS

"Vince" Stratton, hard-hitting catcher of the Voltz-Texaco team, continues to lead the batters of the Bristol Suburban League. Stratton in nine games has stepped to the plate 22 times and connected for 11 hits to give him an even 500 average. Harry Bauroth, of the Diamond team, is in second place with a .444 average, while Pappaterra, of Diamond, and Sullivan, of Rohm & Haas, are also .400 hitters. Longo, Hunter, in six games, is batting .455.

"Eddie" Hunter, of the Rohm & Haas team, and "Mike" DeRisi, of Diamond, are the new entries into the selected class. Hunter is hitting at a .400 clip, while DeRisi is .310.

Harry Bauroth is leading the scorers with nine runs with Pappaterra in a second place tie with Jesse Vanzant, Rohm & Haas, with six each. A. Grimes, of Voltz, and Rudy, Rohm & Haas, have five each.

TO: Every American on a Payroll FROM: The Secretary of the Treasury

SUBJECT: The New Pay-As-You-Go Method of Collecting Your Income Tax

Starting July 1st, both your Income and Victory Tax will be collected by an entirely new and more convenient method.

Under the old system, you were obliged every March 15th to pay either the full tax for the previous year, or a quarter of that amount. Under the new system, you will keep paid up from month to month.

After July 1st, your employer is obliged by the new law to withhold every month a part of your wages and turn the money into the United States Treasury as payment on your Income and Victory Tax.

Of course, the amount that your employer withholds will depend upon your pay and your exemptions. But this is the important point: For most of us, the amount withheld over a year's period will add up to the same that we're paying now—plus or minus a few dollars.

At the end of the year, we may owe the Government a few dollars or the Government may owe us. (See the tables below.)

You may have heard 20% mentioned as the proportion of your wages that will be withheld. Actually, this is incorrect. To figure the amount that will be withheld, take your total wages and subtract your allowance for exemptions and allowance for dependents; 20% of this lesser amount is the total that will be withheld.

Now please remember this: You must claim those exemptions to take advantage of them. Before July 1st, you must file with your employer an Exemption Certificate. If you do not do this, your employer will have no choice but to deduct 20% of your full pay check.

Here is how the new tax collection method will work: Let's say you are a working man earning $3,000 a year; that you are married, and have two children.

First of all, as a married man you are allowed a personal withholding exemption of $1,248, plus an exemption of $312 for each dependent (other than your wife). This makes a total exemption of $1,872 ($1,248 for yourself and wife, plus $624 for your two dependents), which is deducted from the $3,000 you earn before your tax is computed. You are thus paying tax on $1,128, of which your employer will withhold 20%, or $225.60 for the year. Therefore, in your pay envelope, after July 1, you will receive about $4.40 less each week.

In March, 1944, when you ordinarily would be faced with paying taxes on your 1943 income, you will file a return showing how much you have already paid, and how much your total tax actually amounted to. If, by that time, you have already paid more than your actual tax due, you will be given credit for the difference. If you owe more than you have paid, you will pay the difference.

Since this plan starts July 1, many wonder what happens to the tax payments they will already have made by that time—on March 15 and June 15.

For a great majority of people, here is what happens. . . Your 1942 income tax is "forgiven" (either all, or most of it). The March and June installments which you originally paid on that 1942 income tax are credited, instead, as payments on your 1943 tax. With the result that on July 1st, with the year half gone, you have already paid tax on that half-year's income. In short, you are "paying as you go."

There is one thing more. Since this pay-as-you-go method leaves you just as much of your net income as you had before, you will probably find it possible to at least maintain your present rate of buying War Bonds. Do this by all means!

Taxes alone will not bring to the Treasury nearly enough money to finance the great invasion war that lies ahead. The war needs every cent of your money that does not go for the necessities of life.
